

Employee giving puts donations to work to help children with apraxia

You can help strengthen support systems in the lives of children with apraxia

Childhood apraxia of speech, one of the most severe childhood speech disorders, makes it difficult or impossible for children to plan the movements of speech structures (lips, tongue, jaw, etc) that make intelligible speech possible. While there is still much to understand about the causes, children who receive appropriate, early, and intensive therapy are usually able to become effective verbal communicators. Children who do not get proper therapy are at risk to never develop understandable speech.

With your support, Apraxia Kids can help children find their voices

Supporting children with apraxia means strengthening the networks of parents, professionals, researchers, and teachers in our community.

- Our extensive online webinar library gives parents and professionals access to the best educational resources available.
- Our annual National Conference draws over 300 parents and professionals every year to learn about apraxia.
- Our Speech Tablets for Apraxia program has provided over 580 tablets to families in need to assist with communication and speech practice at home.
- Our online Speech-Language Pathologist directory helps parents to find experts in their area
- Our Walk for Apraxia program brings together over 14,000 participants for events across the US annually.

About Apraxia Kids

Founded in Pittsburgh in 2000 by parents of children with apraxia, Apraxia Kids is the only national non-profit dedicated exclusively to supporting children with apraxia and their families.
